

A Story Retold

Fantastic Mr Fox - from the perspective of Boggis the Chicken Farmer.

By James from Kent

22nd October 2009

Dear Diary,

I'm getting increasingly tired of this, it's not fair. My Father developed this business from the ground up with a meagre million pounds and this felonious fox is stealing from me. I'm probably the most successful chicken farmer in the world and not only is he single handedly obliterating my profit margins and taking what is rightfully mine, he's seen as some kind of Champion. Earlier this morning I was made aware that he's got his own film coming out tomorrow! And he's being voiced by George Clooney! Imagine that, a film glorifying the theft of someone else's property; what is the world coming to?

Every night I lose three or four chickens. My fowl are supposedly protected by my trusty Beagles but they nap on the job, my electric fence couldn't sizzle a sausage.

Just you wait until Bunce and Bean hear about this new film, it's called "Fantastic Mr Fox". "Fantastic" they're calling him, "Fantastic"! Have you ever heard of anyone more "un-fantastic" in your entire life?

Ah well, I'll get him tomorrow.